

James Saucedo
Deputy Chief
Engineering and Construction Division
USACE Headquarters

James is a professional engineer with almost 30 years' experience in the planning, design, and construction of projects domestically and worldwide. He serves as the Deputy Chief, Engineering and Construction Division for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and shares responsibility with the Chief of Engineering and Construction in providing technical engineering and construction policies and procedures in the execution of all military, civil works, and International and Interagency (IIS) programs.